MICHAEL MURNANE'S "Under Ice" projections... Using high-resolution projectors, live multilayer playback technology, and stage lighting, Murnane will project massive images on the wall in the Hansen Arts Park. These images were collected through the ice and reveal his reflections and feelings from years of ice fishing with his father.

How did your t-shirt get made? Who sewed your jeans? How many miles did the raw cotton travel from the field to the factory to the mall? BEHIND THE SEAMS is a project about the relationship between clothes and climate change. A pop-up garment factory will be created in Jamestown where the public can watch garment workers sew re-purposed t-shirts. After visiting the factory, attendees can visit the boutique.

Storytelling with author, playwright, and teller of tales KEVIN KLING is best known for his popular commentaries on National Public Radio's All Things Considered and his storytelling stage shows like Tales from the Charred Underbelly of the Yule Log. Kling delivers hilarious, often tender stories. His autobiographical tales are as enchanting as they are true to life: hopping freight trains, getting hit by lightning, and eating things before knowing what they are.

THE DUMPLING HOUSE a temporary communal kitchen, translucent beacon on the landscape, temple of culinary contemplation by Emily Stover and Molly Balcom Raleigh. Come by the tent, learn a new recipe, make a dumpling, share your story, and enjoy the fruits of your labor.

PRESTON DRUM'S "Traffic Jam" interactive installation... The setting is simple, a mass of 5 – 7 cars piled up as if they were involved in a fender bender collision on a busy street which has instigated a massive traffic jam. A traffic jam so bad in fact, that life has come to a halt while people watch a film.

This event is made possible in part by grants from the Bush Foundation, ArtsMidwest, Jamestown Tourism, and the National Endowment for the Arts.
